Scripture reading: Psalm 107:1-16

Springtime is my favorite time of year! My favorite part of spring is the flowers. My daffodils are already blooming. The tulips and the iris are green with life.

I love to watch the flowers grow in the spring. If there was one thing, though, that I could change, it would be the amount of time that the flowers bloom. I wait patiently all year as if it seems like forever as for them to develop and bloom. And for as long as they do bloom, it seems like only a small amount of time before they are gone - none of them lasting.

Today's Bible verse states, God's love endures forever. God's love saves us from our enemies, from the darkness that envelops our lives, from our troubles, from our own rebellion. Forever is a hard concept to understand, since nothing in this life lasts forever as friendships, jobs, life itself here on earth. How do you understand a concept when there is nothing for which to compare it? While mentally we may not be able to understand it, it is a growing faith that helps us grasp it as this love that is unending.

Prayer: Dear God, help our faith to grow each day. Thank you for the one thing that lasts forever – Your love. Amen
